Healing from Within

The Natural Pathway to Enhanced Health and Wellness

One of the key components to regenerative care (and the Fraum Center's core philosophy) is the human body's ability to heal itself. Breaking down regenerative medicine to its foundational processes, its essential ingredient and the growing field of treatment being developed around it is Peptide Therapy.

To understand peptides, amino acids that we acquire from a healthy diet combine to form peptides which then combine into proteins, a process which slows as we age. Peptide Therapy goes direct to the source, improving a wide range of health benefits:

- Promotes mental health, memory, and cognitive function.
- Reduces overall signs of aging.
- Improves sexual function.
- Increases immune function including gut health.
- Builds muscle mass and tissue.
- Boosts energy levels and physical strength.
- Improves quality of sleep.
- Stimulates hair growth, hormone levels, and collagen repair.
- Affect weight loss.
- Promote healthy bone structure.
- Influences Inflammatory issues and Pain relief.
- ...And much more

How PEPTIDE THERAPY works:

Peptides can be administered and absorbed into the body through a variety of methods – oral supplements, topical creams, nasal sprays, or subdermal injections, and among the many benefits of this approach, are a natural alternative to prescription drugs, some of which can do more harm than good.

Avoid an increase in prescription intake and start benefitting the exhaustive list of healthy functions influenced by Peptide Therapy. Contact us for an introduction on peptide therapy treatments available at the Fraum Center for Restorative Health and how we work with our patients on a relational level from start to restoration.
